John Tunison is an accomplished Chief Financial Officer with more than two decades of experience leading transformational growth, operational turnarounds, and strategic exits across manufacturing, energy, technology, and digital infrastructure sectors.

He has served as CFO for private equity-backed, venture-backed, and publicly traded companies in the U.S. and Europe, including Verdant Specialty Solutions, Trussway Manufacturing, and Soluna Holdings (NASDAQ: SLNH). At Verdant, he led the sale of the business—originally deemed “non-diligencable”—to international strategic buyer Samyang Holdings within seven months of joining. Prior to that, he guided Trussway Manufacturing through a successful sale to Builders FirstSource (NYSE: BLDR), achieving a valuation more than 2.5× expectations. Across his career, he has raised or refinanced over $300 million in capital, led multiple ERP implementations, and driven more than $500 million in profit improvement through disciplined execution and strategic focus.

A graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, John served ten years as a Nuclear Submarine Officer and Program Director, earning his MBA in Finance from the University of Rhode Island before entering industry. His corporate experience includes senior finance and operational roles with Royal Dutch Shell, Univar, Ascend Performance Materials, and other international enterprises spanning oil & gas, chemicals, technology, and industrial manufacturing.

John is known for his ability to build high-performance teams, navigate complex capital structures, and partner closely with CEOs and boards to deliver lasting value. He has led cross-functional organizations including procurement, IT, pricing, HR, and sales operations, bringing a uniquely holistic perspective to financial leadership.
